

Reproduced by kind permission of Evensford Productions Limited and Pollinger Limited. Copyright c Evensford Productions Limited, 1921.

Kettering Grammar School Magazine,
6, December 1921, p 13

EVENING

*Let the sun set, the summer sun,
Let the pines grow dark
Against the crimson sky;
Let the moon shine against the white birch bark,
Let the day die.*

*Let the purple of even fade away,
White grows the road
Beneath the moonlit sky;
Home goes the wanderer to his own abode,
Dear day, goodbye.*